Graeme Frankcombe. Graeme has spent a short time in hospital rectifying a knee issue. He is now back walking and will soon return to trouble the trout.

Alan Styles. Alan's issues are a little more serious and he has spent many times going in and out of hospital. We hope that he can return to his normal health very soon.

Peter Rasmussen. Peter's issues were also very serious and luckily the medics found what the issue was, and now is slowly on the mend.

Lake Leake Outing

13 members attended the day which was a good turnout and they were met with very high winds. There were a couple of members with boats who decided to go back home because it was so rough and windy.

Ross Frankcombe and Bob Reeves stayed the night and they fished the sheltered western shore - unsure what their catch was.

Bruce Dean and his brother Graeme fished the same shore for one fish. The rest found some shelter on Kalangadoo Bay fishing off the shore.

Bill Greensmith caught a nice brown on a buzzer nymph and Terry Horan also a couple of nice browns on mudeye pattern.

Whilst it was a very good Club event on reflection we should have cancelled due to the weather.

Lake Ina Outing

Cancelled due to the bad weather.

Penstock 'One Fly'

The club held its iconic event for the year Penstock One Fly Saturday 13 December.

Sometimes you can be lucky with the weather and on this day it was fine with light winds.

All members enjoyed a great breakfast of 'bacon and egg' sandwich to kick start the day.

Thanks to President Bill Greensmith for organising the food for breakfast.

Special thanks to Glenn Becher and Andrew wood for preparing and manning the BBQ's.

Total of 20 members rolled up for the day showing support for the club outing.

The winner of 2025 Penstock One Fly was Matt Robison with a Damsel Nymph as his nominated fly, well done Matt.

Reports by Peter Berne.

President's Report

Hi fellow members. Happy new year.

I hope your Christmas and new year was a good one. We are finally entering a more stable weather period with less wind and warmer conditions. fishing has been hard but not without its rewards.

The club has had a very good turn out for all its events last year and I would encourage you all to attend as many club events as possible in the future. If any members have an idea for any future outings for the rest of the season please contact Peter Berne and we will endeavour to organise it.

A possible outing in February is Pine Tier, a mid week one with an overnight stay.

So for my self I have been lucky enough to have fished Lake Fergus for 3 days. Conditions were near perfect and the fishing was the best I have had this season. I have had a couple of trips to Penstock which is fishing quite hard and one trip to St Patricks river where on arrival I found I had left all my fly boxes at home. Go figure.

Nice drive with no fish. I now have an emergency box in my car with flies, tippet and nippers just in case. Jokes on me.

As far as the club is concerned we have a new secretary, Terry Horan, who will take over from Richard as of February.

As you already know all shack bookings are now through Glenn Becher who will let you know how to obtain a shack key if you require one.

I am hoping to organise for more fly tying afternoons with a possible guest tier in the coming months.

I am again appealing to all members to help us help you any ideas you have for events, fishing or casting or anything else that members may be of interest to the club let me know

Tight lines but remember slac

Bill Greensmith—President FFCT

The Chironomidge

Background:

The family of Chironomidae is a group of Diptera insects belonging to the suborder of Nematocera, commonly called “non-biting midges” in the adult stage and “bloodworms” or “buzzers” in the larval stage. They undergo 4 different life cycle stages during their life.

Egg: In general, their eggs are laid in the form of gelatinous masses in contact with water.

Larvae: The length varies from almost 3 to 25–30 mm long as does the colour ranging from whitish yellow to red, green, blue, brownish, purple or even orange and there are 4 instars.

Pupa: The pupal stage is very short compared to the larval stage; its duration is from a few hours to several days. They are comma shaped, and their length varies from just under 3 to 18 mm. Their coloration usually follows that of the larva.

Adult: The adult emerges from the surface of the water in a very short period. Their life is short, and it does not take long for the adults to mate and lay the eggs. They are small deli-

The buzzer:

Fishing with “buzzers” is very popular in European and UK still waters and their popularity stems from the fact that chironomid hatches can happen at any time of the year and that the rising nymphs form a large part of the trout’s diet. Methods of fishing buzzers are many and varied. The most practiced on UK still waters are to fish two or three on a long leader and fish them either dead drift or with just enough retrieve to avoid slack between you and the flies. Also popular is hanging one or two under an indicator or, if it’s very calm and the fish are spooky, just a leader greased to within a couple of feet of the fly. The naturals are very slow movers and take a long time to wriggle their way to the surface - easy pickings for the trout so takes are usually quite gentle. When the buzzers reach the surface, they have trouble breaking through the meniscus and tend to hang there, which could often be the explanation for those frustrating times when we see those bulging rise forms that don’t quite break the surface, and we say that they’re midgeing.

The Tie

| | |
|-----------|-------------------------------------|
| Hook | Gamakatsu GP301 #14, or similar |
| Thread | 8/0 Uni - Black |
| Thorax | Fine black rabbit fur, or seals fur |
| Body | Pheasant tail fibres |
| Ribbing | Silver flat tinsel |
| Wing buds | Split Jungle cock |
| Gills | White marabou fibres |

Process

1. Set the hook in the vice and lay down about 6 turns of thread – trim waste.
2. Select some marabou fibres and tie in forward of the hook eye with 2 – 3 turns of thread.

3. Trim off base section at an angle, and front section about 2mm from the hook eye.
4. Wind the thread to opposite the hook point.
5. Tie in the tinsel and continue winding the thread down into the hook gape.
6. Select 6 pheasant tail fibres and tie in base first, then pull the fibres until the tips are close to the tie in point.
7. Wind the thread to tie in the fibres to opposite the hook point.
8. Wind the pheasant tail fibres forward in the opposite direction, then tie off and trim the excess.
9. Wind forward 5 – 6 turns the ribbing, tie off and trim the excess.
10. Tie in the wing buds, trim waste.
11. Tidy-up by adding a few more turns of thread to the thorax.
12. Dub on the rabbit fur and form the thorax.
13. End up with the thread in front of the marabou.
14. Varnish the thread and whip finish in front of the marabou.

Note:

1. Moisten the marabou to keep its shape.
2. Lay the jungle cock feathers with the good side facing up and force the 'eyes' down either side of the hook.

The Knotted Midge:

The Knotted Midge is another of those universal flies, like the Griffiths Gnat, used just about everywhere that trout feed on midges. It is supposed to represent a mating pair and stands out from all the singles on the water. Trout are notoriously difficult to catch when they are midgeing, just cruising around leaving barely a dimple as they sip them from the surface film.

A well-placed 'knotted midge' often brings results.

Sometimes the only difficult thing about tying the 'knotted midge' is finding hackle feathers small enough.

The Tie

| | |
|---------|-----------------------------|
| Hook | Dry fly #16 - 20 |
| Body | 8/0 Uni – Black, or similar |
| Hackles | Black cock |

Process

1. Set the hook in the vice and lay a foundation thread from the hook eye to above the hook barb.
2. Tie in the rear hackle 4 – 5 turns and tie off and trim excess.
3. Wind the thread forward to just behind the hook eye.
4. Tie in the front hackle, tie off and trim excess.
5. Whip finish.

Note:

1. As shown in the photo a ‘wedding band’ of gold or silver tinsel can be tied midway between the hackles.

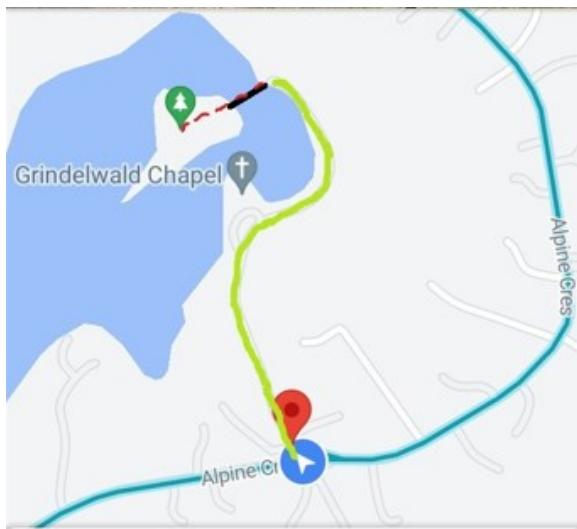

These flies appeared in the “Fly of the Month” archive by and with thanks to Alan Taylor for the tying instructions of his flies.
